

Healthy Soil for Healthy Farms

Soil Health Workshops

The Project

LachLandcare's Healthy Soil for Healthy Farms project aims to develop the understanding of soil health throughout the Lachlan Catchment. We will be working with farmers and Local Landcare Coordinators across the Lachlan catchment to host six soil health workshops. These workshops will have a practical, hands-on approach and will include the following key aspects of soil health and nutrient management:

- Understanding and assessing soil health.
- Understanding and assessing soil biology.
- Reading soil tests with confidence.
- Making decisions for better soil health.
- Making decisions for improved nutrient management.

To bring you up to speed on all this soil knowledge, we have engaged well known agro-ecologist David Hardwick. David has over 20 years' experience in sustainable agriculture, working in diverse roles including agronomy, soils, agribusiness, research and development, fertiliser manufacturing, rural training and extension and Landcare. David has a high level of technical knowledge combined with a warm style of delivery that is easily digestible and inspiring. Check out David's website, www.soilandfood.com.au, to see some of his previous work.
