

Celebrate National Threatened Species Day

On 7 September 1936 the last Tasmanian Tiger died at the Hobart Zoo. Now each year on this day, we focus on plants and animals at risk of extinction and highlight the amazing work that is being done to save them.

Come to Wonga Wetlands and join Luke Pearce (NSW DPI Fisheries) and Damian Michael (ANU) as they share their experiences with our local threatened fish and frogs. Join them for a frog-spotting walk around the lagoon.

All followed by a delicious supper.
